

Coercive control is a web of abuse

It's when someone repeatedly hurts, scares, or isolates another person to control them.

Some abusive behaviours can seem minor on their own, but together they form a pattern of abuse. It can feel like being caught in a web.

Did you know?

From July 2024 there are new laws about coercive control in NSW.

dcj.nsw.gov.au/coercivecontrol-cantonese

For support, call the Translating and Interpreting Service on 13 14 50 and ask to contact 1800RESPECT (1800 737 7328)