

PANEL OVERVIEW

Panel Meaning

The meaning behind this cultural panel reflects the “Outcomes for Aboriginal People” and their descriptions.

- The centre piece is a gathering circle with the yellow people (u-shape) representing Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisations and Aboriginal staff in early intervention services supporting the community members, represented by the orange person in the middle.
- The stars above in the teal colour represents harnessing years of traditional knowledge from generations.
- The orange meeting places with the knowledge sticks surrounding represents empowerment and growth.
- The pink community circles in a row represent that each community and the people within are all unique and different; however, they are connected through culture, kinship, knowledge, sharing and belonging.
- The green leaves represent wellbeing and health through Country and the seeds represent planting the seeds for future, growth and journeys.
- The blue circles have journey tracks moving out to represent ‘from little things, big things grow’ with economic autonomy.
- The green boomerangs represent resilience, innovation and learning. The boomerang holds many purposes, carefully curated from generations of knowledge and cultural practices.
- The journey lines layered within represent Country and journeys of people and communities, being interlayed and the flow of this movement.
