NSW Department of Communities and Justice
Disability Inclusion
Action Plan 2020-24
Welcome
See how we’re building a culture of accessibility and inclusion for our staff and the communities we work with

Secretary’s foreword

At the Department of Communities and Justice (DCJ) we often work with people at critical times in their lives.

Our work can be challenging, confronting and confusing for those we work with. It is essential that we behave with respect and compassion.

We have a duty to be inclusive, and the NSW Government recognises that people with disability are too often excluded and denied dignity because of insensitive design and uninformed attitudes.

DCJ aims to help create a more inclusive community through our first Disability Inclusion Action Plan (DIAP). It has four focus areas:

- Attitudes and behaviours
- Liveable communities
- Meaningful employment
- Systems and processes

The two agencies that merged to form DCJ in 2019 had promised to work better with staff with disability.

We’ve made considerable progress on this, thanks to the impressive work of our ever growing Disability Employee Network (DEN).

And while we still have a way to go, together we’ll get there.

We will use our DIAP to help create an organisational culture where everyone is aware of, and responds to, the needs of people with disability in our workplaces and in our community.

I will champion this DIAP and our department will actively support it.

Why a Disability Inclusion Action Plan?

The Disability Inclusion Act 2014 (the Act) commits the NSW Government “to creating a more inclusive community in which mainstream services and community facilities are accessible to people with disability to help them achieve their full potential.”

The Act requires the NSW Government to develop a Disability Inclusion Plan (NSW DIP). It sets out how to create a more inclusive society across the state and requires public agencies in NSW to create and implement disability inclusion action plans (DIAPs).

The NSW DIP established the four focus areas that is also used in DIAPs. These were developed in consultation with people with disability and provide a guide for all public sector agencies in NSW.

Focus areas

Developing positive community attitudes and behaviours

- How we (public sector agencies) behave towards colleagues with disability.
- How we treat clients and community members with disability.
- How we can have a positive influence in the community in general – improving how people with disability are perceived and included.

Creating liveable communities

- How we work to ensure the physical environment and services operating in our communities are accessible.
- How we respond to the needs people with physical and sensory disabilities, to ensure these individuals have full access to their community and activities.

Supporting access to meaningful employment

- As part of the Premier’s Priorities, we want to employ more people with disability across DCJ.
- How we ensure staff with disability feel included and have equal access to career development opportunities.

Improving access to mainstream services through better systems and processes

- This covers a range of technical accessibility matters. This includes forms, the internet and other means of contacting us, or accessing our information and services.
- Ensuring everybody has access to the right information, so staff, the community and public sector agencies can all communicate clearly and effectively with each other.
The case for inclusion

Disability is a part of our lives

- In NSW there are over 1.3 million people living with disability.
- Disability may be acquired at birth or early in life; or it can be the result of accident, illness or injury at any later stage.
- Disability rates increase substantially as we age, with close to 40 per cent of us having some form of disability by the time we’re 70.
- We experience a range of impacts because of disability, with just under six per cent of the population experiencing profound or severe disability.
- Disability is caused by a range of conditions. This includes intellectual, physical, cognitive, sensory, and neurological impairments or mental illness.
- What disabilities have in common is the disadvantage and discrimination that many experience as a result.

What does ‘inclusion’ mean?

- Inclusion is about respect and action.
- To be inclusive, is to take steps so that a person can meaningfully contribute in their workplace, community and society and have a sense of belonging.

Benefits of inclusion

- In recent years there have been significant changes in disability policies in Australia. At the heart of these changes is recognising that people with disability have the right to full and effective participation in society.
- An inclusive society doesn’t only benefit people with disability either, it benefits everyone.
- As a community, we are strengthened by our diversity and are enriched through activities that promote inclusion.
- Inclusion reduces disadvantage, isolation and discrimination. It has far reaching positive impacts across all aspects of life, including health, welfare, education and employment. These are felt beyond the individual as well, with families and the broader community all benefitting from an inclusive society.\(^1\)
- There are strong economic reasons for increasing the inclusiveness of our society. Analysis indicates that there are significant financial gains for both individuals and for the economy by assisting people with disability into productive and fulfilling employment.\(^2\)

Our Disability Inclusion Action Plan

Our first Disability Inclusion Action Plan (DIAP) as a department learns from the individual plans of our former agencies. It also acknowledges the challenge to ensure that our plan is integrated as part of core business, not an add-on competing for attention and resources.

Our aims

Over the four year DIAP we want to see organisational changes within our culture and practices. To achieve this, we commit to:

- We will be constantly aware of, proactive and responsive to disability matters.

This will ensure we are inclusive of people with disability in our workplaces and in our engagement with the community.

- ‘Action for Inclusion’

We will take deliberate steps to identify challenge areas and take planned and resourced actions to address them. This will come in the form of projects.

Our approach

Projects are at the heart of our DIAP

- Many projects will be identified at Board, Division or Directorate level as priorities.
- Other projects can be developed by groups such as our Disability Employee Network (DEN) and staff committed to bringing about positive cultural change in their areas.

Ongoing consultation

- To address the needs of staff with disability effectively, we will directly engage our people.
- All projects must engage with key stakeholders in a meaningful way through the life of the project – from design to evaluation.
- The DEN will be consulted about all projects impacting staff with disability. Key disability stakeholders will be engaged with for all service-related projects.
Focus areas

Our plan is to achieve the following aims under the four focus areas set by the NSW Disability Inclusion Plan.

Positive attitudes and behaviours

- We will continue to develop a workplace culture in which we think and act inclusively.
- We commit to continuing to develop disability awareness skills in our frontline workers across our range of services to ensure we engage with community members with disability with sensitivity and respect.

Stronger communities

- Through our services, we will support and contribute to actions that make our communities physically accessible and socially inclusive.
- We will work with people with disability who are involved with our services to support them to be successful in living safe and rewarding lives in their communities.

Meaningful employment

- We will continue to refine our recruitment methods to ensure that people with disability experience accessible and fair selection processes.
- We will continue to develop a workplace culture in which people with disability have equal access to career development opportunities.
- We aim to be an employer of choice for people with disability.

Better systems and processes

- We commit to ensuring our systems and processes are universally accessible.
- We commit to employing the principles of inclusive or universal design to shape all our systems and processes.

Why our DIAP is web-based

Our DIAP will evolve throughout the life of the plan. Having it online helps to ensure it’s:

- accessible - user-friendly and easy to understand.
- up-to-date - so we can keep you informed about projects and successes.
- accountable - it will help you see what progress is being made.
Accountability

How we support DIAP projects

We will ensure projects stay on track by supporting them in a range of ways.

- Each project will have a registered Executive Sponsor who will provide progress reports at agreed intervals.
- A Senior Executive Governance Group (SEGG) reviews all project proposals and all subsequent progress reports. The Chair of our Disability Employee Network (DEN) is a member of this group and there are representatives from each division of our department.
- The Disability Inclusion team will be available to provide information, guidance and advice.
- By posting project details and progress reports online, we affirm our commitment to transparency and accountability.
- There is a dedicated mailbox that will ensure any inquiry is addressed promptly.

How you’ll know progress is being made

The DIAP has a number of ways to ensure accountability:

1. All projects proposals must detail:
   a. The project objective – what the project seeks to achieve and what outputs will be delivered.
   b. The challenge – what change challenge will the project address.
   c. Why this is important – the benefits envisioned and why they are important.
   d. What success will look like – what changes a successful project will deliver.
   e. How success will be measured.

2. The SEGG has set four-monthly meetings at which it will review progress reports from all active, or completed, DIAP projects. It will also meet at other times as needed.

3. All registered projects will be posted online; and will be updated with progress reports at least at six-monthly intervals.

4. An annual ‘How are we doing?’ report will be posted online, with our Secretary’s endorsement.

5. The consultation strategy will ensure that internal and external stakeholders are invited to review the DIAP’s progress annually.

All completed projects must be reviewed. We will ask whether the project has succeeded, and what we can learn to inform future work to improve what we do.
Consultation and engagement

Why it’s important

Engagement helps us better understand what is important to people with disability, how decisions are made, and what influences those decisions.

DCJ is committed to ensuring that we consult effectively with people with disability. Our Disability Inclusion Action Plan (DIAP) is designed for ongoing consultation with staff and the community.

We will create pathways so that people with disability, and those who support or care for them, can have their voices heard in the clearest way by the people who can act on their concerns.

How we’ll do it

The DIAP has an overall consultation strategy. This will ensure that consultations are well managed, and they are appropriately targeted to give meaningful input and review. These will be conducted by:

- building consultation partnerships with disability peak organisations, disability advocacy groups, service providers and other stakeholders.
- Have Your Say online surveys
- consultation workshops
- emails to actionforinclusion@facs.nsw.gov.au.

Each DIAP project is required to have consultation built into its project design. By involving people with disability, we can empower and support them to shape and influence their own lives and the services they access. When we effectively engage with them we are building relationships and trust, and receive insights that can help drive improvement in people’s lives.

All projects which impact DCJ staff with disability are required to consult with our strong and active Disability Employee Network (DCJ DEN).

<td>Building Access for Women with Disability, delivered by People with Disability Australia</td>
<td>Building Access for Women with Disability is a four year project supported by the NSW Government Domestic and Family Violence Innovation Fund and delivered by People with Disability Australia. The key objective of this project is that women with disability and their children will have greater access to domestic and family violence (DFV) services. This will in turn increase their safety, and may reduce their likelihood of returning to violent situations or being at risk of homelessness.</td>
<td>A successful project will deliver improved responses for women with disability experiencing violence and their children, and ultimately increase the safety of this cohort. Improved responses mean greater access to DFV services and may reduce their likelihood of returning to violent situations or being at risk of homelessness. People with Disability Australia expect to see changes in knowledge, attitudes, skills practices and actions for services</td>

<td>The Innovation Fund is delivering $20m for 20 innovative projects across two rounds. The Fund supports innovative projects addressing prevention, early intervention and crisis response to DFV. Projects target a variety of priority communities, including people with disability. The Building Access for Women with Disability project is receiving funding ($516,418) over four years, from 1 July 2017 to 30 June 2021. The project provides DFV services with information, support and resources to increase the accessibility of services for women with disability. Each year, five services across the state are selected and supported to audit their own physical environment, informational resources, policies, procedures and attitudinal accessibility, with support from women with disability who are recruited to assist in the process. The project supports services to provide appropriate and necessary assistance to women with disability experiencing violence through the collaborative development of disability inclusion action plans, and the creation of a disability inclusion Community of Practice.</td>

| Development of a Youth Justice Disability Action Plan - Improving outcomes for young people with a disability involved with Youth Justice | This project seeks to:
  - examine the current ways in which other criminal justice jurisdictions work with young people with disabilities
  - develop a Disability Action Plan using the Disability Issues Paper, staff consultation, data analysis and literature review.
  - document the current Youth Justice initiatives, formal and informal, that work effectively with young people with disabilities.
  - provide advice on future actions required relating to service delivery, programming and training to improve service provision to young people with disabilities. | With the development of the Disability Action Plan, Youth Justice will have a clear direction to improve it’s service to young people with a disability. At the end of implementation of the Plan Youth Justice will be a more youth-centric service which listens to the individual needs of each young person with a disability and their family, and will respond in a culturally sensitive, therapeutically targeted manner to ensure best outcomes for each young person. Youth Justice will have implemented routine screening of all young people involved with Youth Justice to ensure timely identification, diagnosis and referral. Youth Justice staff will also be more skilled to recognise and correctly progress any presenting disability issues, and provide ongoing referral, support and advocacy for each young person with disability. Using accessible resources, interventions and programs which meet the individual needs of each young person, Youth Justice will provide a more equitable service to young people with a disability and their families. Data collection will also be streamlined to identify and respond to young people with a disability more efficiently and effectively. | Youth Justice | Progressing |

Activities promoting inclusion since 2015

The Department of Family and community Services (FACS) and Department of Justice (DOJ) amalgamated in July 2019 to form the Department of Communities and Justice. Prior to the amalgamation both former department’s had their own Disability Inclusion Action Plans (DIAPs) prior to producing the current plan (DCJ DIAP 2020-2024). Throughout the previous FACS and DOJ DIAPs many activities were undertaken under the following four focus areas:

- Positive attitudes and behaviours
- Stronger communities
- Meaningful employment
- Better systems and processes

The following list are some of these activities:

Develop positive attitudes and behaviours

- Over 40 Aboriginal Readiness Yarn-ups were held across NSW targeting Aboriginal people with disability, their carers, family and community to raise awareness about disability and the introduction of the NDIS, and to build capacity among Aboriginal people with disability and their carers to access supports to help them achieve their life goals. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

- In May 2018 the Minister for Disability, the Hon. Ray Williams, tabled the update report on the implementation of the NSW Disability Inclusion Plan in the NSW Parliament. The report highlights the progress made to date across the 10 priority actions, as well as other activities undertaken as part of the NSW Disability Inclusion Plan. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=637241)

- FACS has partnered with the Public Service Commission to produce the NSW DIP, DIAP guidelines and a series of workshops to support development of DIAPs by state government agencies and councils. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/file/0004/341608/FACS_Annual-Report_20142015.pdf)

- Feature videos of the 2016 Don’t DIS my ABILITY Campaign attracted over one million social media views. As part of the campaign, the Access All Areas Film Festival provided opportunities for over 10,000 people to experience accessible Australian cinema in 61 screenings across NSW. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)
With the success of the 2018 Employable Me series, a second series screened in 2019, attracting an audience of 831,000, 31 per cent of which was aged under 50. The aim of the series was to continue to promote and inspire a national conversation about disability employment by highlighting the experience of people with disability as they navigate the journey of employment. Once again, audience impressions of the series were extremely positive. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=727849)

FACS funded the 2015 Don’t DIS my ABILITY campaign to produce pervasive public awareness messages, such as ‘Say it to my face’ and ‘Day in the life’, which had over 600,000 views. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=387334)

The FACS Procurement Management Plan was updated to encourage ongoing improvement in diversity and inclusion. FACS widely promoted the engagement of disability businesses wherever possible for goods and services through our network with National Disability Services organisations. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

FACS continued to implement resources of the Good to Great Framework across FACS-operated disability accommodation support services. This has enhanced outcomes for people with disability, especially in the areas of health and safeguarding. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

LAHC’s maintenance contracts focused on social outcomes and over 6.3 per cent of work was undertaken by disability enterprises or community service providers. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0005/637241/2017-18-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

Lifestart School Age Years Inclusion Program (SAY) for young people (9–18 years) worked with children and young people with disability, their families/carers, and mainstream and community-based programs at key life stages and transition points to support inclusive practices within mainstream services and settings. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

The Aboriginal Housing Office worked to ensure that Aboriginal Community Housing Providers are aware of changes to the provision of service for people with a disability within the NDIS through targeted communications and newsletters.

FACS provided funding to NOVA Employment to support their extremely successful Focus on Ability Short film festival. The target audience is high-school-aged students and the aim of the festival is to highlight the ability of

- In partnership with Create NSW and the Sydney Film Festival, FACS sponsored several ‘Screenability’ Film Festivals, which included works written, directed or produced by people with disability and which, through creative and challenging works, raised issues faced by individuals with disability. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0010/727849/FACS-Annual-Report-2018-19-Volume-1.pdf)

The campaign encourages employers to commit to employing more people with disability. The campaign tells the story of employers who have seized the opportunity to empower employees with disability and give them the chance to shine. Over 92,000 LinkedIn members saw the campaign and over 400,000 impressions were generated.” (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0010/727849/FACS-Annual-Report-2018-19-Volume-1.pdf)

- Supported Decision Making (SDM) Workshops Carers NSW and Mirri Mirri continued to deliver Supported Decision Making (SDM) workshops for 14–18-year-olds with disability, their families and carers. The workshops focused on building the capacity of adolescents with disability to make supported decisions, while also providing a framework for building the capacity of families and carers to step away from substitute decisionmaking, towards SDMs that were more person-centred. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

The workshops aimed to build positive attitudes around the ability of young people with disability to speak up, be empowered and make informed decisions about their future and goals. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/files/0010/387334/FACS_Annual_Report_2015-16_Volume_1_Performance_and_activities_report.pdf)

The workshops focussed on building positive attitudes around the ability of young people with disability to speak up, be empowered and make informed decisions about their future and goals. A total of 127 young people and 63 support workers attended the life skills and empowerment workshops in 2016–17. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

- Membership of the Staff with Disability Network was promoted throughout the year. (https://www.justice.nsw.gov.au/Documents/Annual%20Reports/justice-nsw-annual-report-2016-17.pdf)

- The Department of Justice Disability & Flexible Service Delivery (FSD) program was developed. It is a training program that provides staff with the framework, skills and resources to make reasonable adjustments for individuals with a disability without needing to be an expert. The principles include never assume - always ask, equal treatment does not ensure equity and know that ins most situations there is a variety of flexibles ways that a service can be delivered. Training programs and resources include:

(https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

Create liveable communities

- FACS initiated a lift upgrade and installed an audio prompt system at one of its Sydney CBD leased sites to improve accessibility for people with visual impairment. The upgrade benefited all users of the building. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)
- FACS funded upgrades to the Bidwill Uniting Community Centre in Western Sydney. A ramp was added to the building, and the bathroom was upgraded to meet accessibility standards. https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- Accessibility was a key consideration in the relocation of the NCAT Guardianship Division from Balmain to Sydney CBD in April 2016. Applications to the Division may concern people with dementia, intellectual disability, brain injury or mental illness. Clients of the Division represent a broad cross-section of the community. The Division’s external disability stakeholders were consulted during the planning phase for the move where a consultant, experienced in designing accessible facilities, was engaged to ensure the new registry environment makes people coming to the Tribunal feel at ease. The new Guardianship Division Registry premises on Level 6 of the John Maddison Tower Goulburn Street Sydney, was officially opened by the Attorney General in May 2016. (https://www.justice.nsw.gov.au/Documents/Annual%20Reports/JusticeAnnualReport2015-16.pdf)

- FACS delivered 118 new homes in the community for people living in outmoded large residential centres, enabling over 500 people to move into new homes where they live more independently and closer to family and the local community. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- A capital program delivered new contemporary residential accommodation to support the closure of LRCs. This allows residents to move from outdated modes of accommodation to contemporary purpose-built accommodation that provides them with greater choice, independence and community connection. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/535256/FACS-Annual-Report-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

- Through Communities Plus, ageing social housing dwellings will be replaced with properties that meet the seven core design elements from the Liveable Housing Design Guidelines. These elements aim to make homes easier and safer to use for all occupants, including people with disability. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- Land and Housing Corporation (LAHC) commenced lift facility upgrades in the social housing portfolio buildings to make lifts safer for clients with disability, enabling ease of movement around buildings and making lifts being more adaptable to the changing abilities of clients. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)
• LAHC aims to construct up to half of its new social housing dwellings with elements that make them easier to move around, safer to live in and more adaptable to the changing abilities of residents. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

• The FACS Lift and Change Facilities Trial provided funding to establish 10 accessible facilities, each including a ceiling hoist, a height-adjustable change table and an accessible toilet. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0005/637241/2017-18-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

• FACS continued to work with Sport NSW, Clubs NSW, the NSW Business Chamber and Settlement Services International to build access and inclusion among their members. Highlights included the holding of the first NSW Inclusive Sport Conference, the commencement of a disability-inclusive business category on the NSW Business Chamber annual awards, and the successful application by three of the organisations for over $3 million in funding from the NDIS Information, Linkages and Capacity Building (ILC) program to support inclusive programs into the future. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0010/727849/FACS-Annual-Report-2018-19-Volume-1.pdf)

• Prior to the introduction of the NDIS, FACS supported a number of community projects to increase inclusion for people with disability through small grants and sponsorships. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0005/637241/2017-18-Volume-1-Performance-and-activities-report.pdf)

• Wheelchair Sports NSW to conduct the annual ‘Oz-Day 10K’, promoting disability sports and raising community awareness.

- All local councils across NSW developed DIAPs through consultation with people with disability. This represents an unprecedented alignment of disability planning priorities across State and local government in NSW, driving mobilisation around the needs of people with disability in a way that is unique in Australia. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- During 2016-2017 FACS continued to fund Sport NSW, Clubs NSW, the NSW Business Chamber and Settlement Services International to build access and inclusion among their members. The collaboration has raised awareness of disability inclusion and planning, creating more jobs, growing social and sporting opportunities, and building the business case for inclusive tourism and the promotion of inclusive programs. More than 25,000 organisations have been directly engaged through this project. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- In 2016-2017 the Surf Life Saving Project funded three NSW beach precincts to administer grants to help make beachside experiences more accessible, develop capacity and offer inclusive beach and water activities in a mainstream setting for people with disability. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)

- During 2016-2017 FACS continued developing its Inclusive Tourism Plan to expand the inclusive tourism market, which will create local jobs and business opportunities and build local awareness of access and inclusion. (https://www.facs.nsw.gov.au/download?file=535256)
